

Project Initialization and Planning Phase

|               |                                             |
|---------------|---------------------------------------------|
| DATE          | 30 JUNE 2026                                |
| TEAM MEMBERS  | KANAK DHINDHWAL , ISHA SAINI , BALJEET KAUR |
| PROJECT NAME  | AI POWERED VIDEO SCRIPT GENERATOR           |
| MAXIMUM MARKS |                                             |

Problem statement definition

In this phase, we focused on clearly understanding the problem from the user's point of view before jumping into the solution. The main purpose of defining a problem statement is to ensure that we are solving a real and meaningful issue rather than just building a technical tool.

To guide this process, we followed the idea of a customer-focused problem statement approach. This approach helps us understand what users actually need, what challenges they face, and what kind of experience would genuinely make their work easier. Instead of thinking from a developer's perspective, we tried to think from the user's perspective — especially content creators who regularly struggle with idea generation and script writing.

By using this method, we were able to clearly identify the gap between existing tools and real user needs. Most users want a simple and fast way to generate creative video ideas and convert them into structured scripts without spending too much time on planning or writing.

This helped us define a clear problem statement for our project and ensured that our solution is focused on improving user experience, reducing effort, and making the content creation process smoother and more efficient.

Problem Statements (Customer Perspective)

| User Type                         | Problem Statement                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Content Creator / YouTuber | I am a content creator who regularly makes videos, and I need a quick way to generate creative and structured video scripts because I often spend too much time thinking of ideas and organizing my content.              |
| Student / Beginner Creator | I am a student who wants to start creating videos, and I need help in writing simple and clear video scripts because I struggle with organizing my thoughts and turning ideas into proper scripts.                        |
| Digital Marketer           | I am a digital marketer who creates promotional videos, and I need an efficient tool to generate engaging video scripts because I need to produce content quickly while still keeping it audience-friendly and impactful. |